WCC appoints Buddhist executive secretary

Canon A. T. Houghton, a leading Anglican missionary executive in England, has strongly criticised the World Council of Churches for appointing a Buddhist to an executive position on its staff.

Abp Arnott at Tara School

The Archbishop of Bris-bane, Dr Felix Arnott, dedi-cated a new library and classroom extensions at Tara Church of England School, Parramatta, NSW, on 17 workroom space and a comformably furnished casual reading area.

The school already has a librarian on the staff.

Miss H. W. Claridge, the present headmistress, retires at the end of this term after 11 years at the school. During that time enrolment has grown from 280 to 460 girls and the school has been soundly established in very spacious grounds in North Parramatta adjoining The King's School.

Miss Margaret Macdonald, headmistress of the Limuru Girls' School in Kenya, and a graduate of the University of Sydney and the Sydney Teachers' College, has been appointed headmistress from the beginning of the second term.

In a letter in the 26 March issue of the "Church of England Newspaper," Canon Houghton, himself a former missionary, writes:

SIR, In Watchman's "Talk of the Week" for your issue of March 12, attention was drawn to the brief announcement some weeks ago of the appointment of a Buddhist by the World Council of Churches as executive secretary for Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia. I was so astonished at the time that I expected to see a later disclaimer to the effect that

s the WCC is not 'faithful to its Basis.'

I have always supported membership of the WCC as long as it upheld its Basis and allowed complete freedom of expression on the part of its members. The recent action of the Central Committee of the WCC in making grants to movements in Africa committed to violence and rebellion, sadly endorsed by the Anglican Consultative Committee at Limuru, added to the appointment of a Buddhist as an "executive secretary," only confirms my view that withdrawal from the membership of the WCC should be advocated in the General Synod of the Church of England.

The Race Question

In God's sight, all men are equally sinners, and the fact that Christ died for all, irrespective of race or colour, makes men equals. The practice of dis-crimination against any man on the grounds of his racial origin is an affront to God as well as to man.

Heedless of God's love for men in Christ, the history of man reveals that nations and individuals, even so-called Christian nations, have practised racial discrimination, even claiming religious sanction.

Philip II, aided by the Spanish Inquisition, decided on the total destruction of the people of the Netherlands. Hitler destroyed 12 million Jews and made slaves of millions of Poles, French, Czechs and others because they did not belong to the "master race." The Seviet Union and some Arab nations are practising massive discrimination against the Jews today.

We are faced today with racial discrimination in its simplest form in Ulster, in the Sudan, and it is far from dead in the USA and Australia. It has also reared its ugly head in Britain, for long the bastion of complete racial

So far we have not mentioned South Africa, but if So far we have not mentioned South Africa, but if we were to be influenced only by the mass media, we would believe that South Africa alone practises racial discrimination among the world's nations. Words like "racist" and "racism" are flung in her direction, her sportsmen, and accredited representatives are vilified and ugly emotions are deliberately inflamed. Often, it is by churchmen and by others who should know better.

Christians have a perfect right to profest, but the Christians have a perfect right to protest, but the modern demonstration movement with its accompanying abuse, bad language and violence is the antithesis of Christ-like behaviour. At the moment in Australia it has changed its attack on Australia's part in Vietnam to South Africa. Its inspiration is international and Australia follows a pattern worked out we know not where.

follows a pattern worked out we know not where.

If it is alleged that South Africa is guilty of practising racial discrimination, so is Australia. But we make no such an allegation against either country. The policy of "separate development" and our own immigration acts (popularly called the White Australia Policy) are not aimed at other races because they are seen as inferior.

Australia and South Africa, just like Britain and Malavsia, are exercising their sovereign right through their

Like any such decision, they may be changed in the future if proved wrong. Few of us would blame Britain for its new restricted immigration policy. Few Australians want unrestricted immigration to our country. But this is not racial discrimination. We are exercising our right to make such decisions for ourselves and to order our own way of life.

The United Nations, the World Council of Churches, and some of our own leading politicians and churchmen are sitting in judgment on South Africa, and some are condemning her in the most intemperate lan-Supercharged emotions do nothing for international understanding. We need to study the situation in the entire African continent if we are to understand South Africa. It has been a nation for nine years less than Australia, 61 years to be exact. Its various governments have made mistakes, just like all human governments.

If we are honestly concerned about racial dis-nination and not just venting our emotions on the current scapegoat, ordinary justice and concern for humanity would force us to turn our attention to the million Africans slaughtered in the Sudan by the Arab majority or to the myriads of people of the Jews and of many other races, thwarted, suffering and dying in communist

Thanksgiving

I read once of a little girl who detested milk pudding and who had been made to eat some for her dinner. When she asked if she might leave the table she was

"But I have nothing to be thankful for," she said, sulkily.

"Very well," said her mother.
"Remain there until you have."
There was silence for a few minutes. Then a little voice said.
"Lord, I thank you I wasn't sick."

She had captured a tiny bit of the principle of Christian thanksgiving if nothing of the spirit. "Always and for everything give thanks to God the Tather in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ."
(Ephesians 5:20).

An attitude of gratitude is es-

(Ephesians 5:20).

An attitude of gratitude is essential for a Christian who would walk in the steps of Jesusgratitude not only to God but also to others. It is said of Francis Xavier by one of his contemporaries that if ever any of the brothers were sad, the way they took to be happy was to spend an hour with him. His thankfulness to God for everything was so infectious.

The interval of Ridley College, Melbourne, is vicar of St Aidan's, Parkdale, Victoria. Watch in to give thanks that someone had committed a crime. Christ."

The sincerity and gratitude with which you can say those words is a good measure of the extent of your dependence on Christ. The New Testament leaves us in no doubt that the blessing which should evoke our deepest gratitude is that "God has given us life in His Son."

But there are many Christians.

But there are many Christians who, if they were really honest when they considered the things for which they give thanks, would have to place their

However, God can turn the wickedness of men into a blessing. "By turning everything to their good, God co-operates with all those who love Him" (Romans 8:28). I think Paul would ask my friend to try to spreading gloom and despondency in the wake of every conversation. The sort of person who, if commenting on the attendance at church, would describe the building as "half empty" rather than "half full."

SENSE OF DUTY

I often think it is a pity when a Christian gives thanks to God only out of a sense of duty. Have you ever begun your prayers with thanksgiving and subconsciously had in your mind that by beginning that way God will be more likely to listen when you come to the intercession part?

I suspect one of the most frequent occasions when a sense

(1) Because of an awareness of spiritual gifts. Few clergy can communicate effectively with youth, but all are expected to do so in the high school. They may not be able to run a worthwhile youth group in the church but magically it is expected they can interest and evangelise rebellious youth in an antipathetic environment.

(2) Because of the attitude of most in the class. They are there not because they want to be; there is no real choice open to them, yet in almost every other area of life they please themselves. So we go into the classroom behind scratch. The captive such serves the community and even the church may expect this of us but I believe it is not from God unless a man is particularly gifted for his ministry. Youth, too, should have the opportunity of deciding to attend: you cannot force any into the Kingdom of God or teach those who do not wish to learn.

THE SILENCE OF POPE PIUS XII by Carlo Falconi. Faber, 1970. 391 pages $9.80.

Carlo Falconi has written as cholarly book invoiving immense research. History has been generous in its verdict on the genial John XXIII and somewhat uncertain about Paul VI, the reigning Papal Hamlet. Can anything be said in favour of the ultramontane Pius XII? Carlo Falconi thinks so.

Frankly he faces the issues raised by the Pope's silence on somany issues on which his critics consider he should have spoken out in the days of World War II. He shows Pius XII as desiring to avoid "dramatic gestures" believing that more could be accomplished by diplomacy than public utterance.

The unifying theme of the book is the impact made by the journal and diary of David Brainerd, evangelist of the Delaware Indians. His writings gave such clear evidence of the grace of God and of the selfless dedication of his own missionary service that they were to awaken in many a realisation of the primary task of Christians to make Christ known.

INTERACTION. Nine Studies of Human Groups. Ed. Paul de Berker. Cassirer, Oxford, 1970. 280 pages. $5.80. There are nine essays which help us to look closely at relationships between individuals in groups and between one group and another. They are concerned with therapeutic, penal educational, industrial and commercial groups but there is much relevance to all sorts of other groups. If you remember the weakness of much writing on human relationships and group life—the failure to see man as a fallen creature whose primary need is Christ's salvation—the pastor and the diligent student of personal relationships will find much profit in this book.

ROMANS, by D. Martyn Lloyd-Jones. Banner of Truth Trust, 1976.

Dr Martyn Lloyd-Jones is a reformed scholar and writer whose long Bible teaching and preaching ministry at Westminster Chapel has had a profound influence in England and beyond. This section of Romans is the heart of the epistle and the author grapples with the basic ideas of expiation, righteousness and justification with skill and insight.

Tas. SU takes over Bible House

On Saturday, April 17th a strange sight was seen in the middle of Hobart's main shopping block. The Script-ure Union "Carryathon" shopping block. The Scripture Union "Carryathon" was in progress and volunteers were moving the S.U. office and bookshop from Liverpool Street to the new site in Bathurst Street.

Scripture Union House is located at 121 Bathurst Street, Hobart. It was formerly known as Bible House. Policy changes in the approach to Bible Society work in Tasmania opened the way for Scripture Union to obtain the lease of the Bathurst Street property.

A bookshop will operate in the front section of Scripture Union House, and the rear sections will be given over to offices. Included in the stock of the bookshop will be a selection of foreign language Bibles, by special arrangement with Bible Society.

The work of Scripture Union in Tasmania is expanding rapidly under the leadership of the new general secretary, Mr R. Buckland, and this further move forward will provide a good base from which the expanding work can be more effectively directed.

The decision on continued affi-liation will be made at the next Assembly of the Tasmanian Bap-tist Union. The last such vote was taken by the Assembly in 1968 when it voted 39 votes to 22 in favour.

It was for many, the first glimpse of the new Anglican Youth Shop — "Youth Gear" — a ministry shared by GFS, CEBS, and Youth Department.

After dinner at CENEF many gathered in St Andrew's Cathedral for the Commissioning Service at which the Archbishop of Sydney, The Most Rev M. L. Loane, preached on the text Luke 14:26-27, the CEBS director, Rev Garry Child read the service and the Youth and GFS Chaplain, Rev Jim Doust presented Gay for commissioning. GFS Diocesan chairman, Mrs M. L. Loane read the lesson — John 15:1-17. This service linked the office bearers and members of the society together in prayer and drew the three youth departments closer in a very meaningful way.

Brisbane co-ordinates women's work

Mrs Anne Arnott is to preside over a new Diocesan Co-ordinating Committee to be known as the Anglican Women's Fellowship in the diocese of Brisbane.

After a preliminary meeting at the Deanery in March, a representative group of women decided that there was a need for a new emphasis in two directions. The new body will publicise women's work to all Anglican women and it will try to meet the needs of all these women who do not belong to existing women's groups.

A meeting of representatives from parishes has been called for 29 April in order to form a central group in association with St John's Cathedral.
