RITUAL KILLING DILEM AT CMS STATION PAUL E. LITTLE

On Sunday, July 6 last, a young Aboriginal woman was stabbed to death at the CMS Station at Groote Eylandt. An Aboriginal man was taken into custody and charged.

It is alleged that he wanted the girl for a second wife and when she refused he stabbed her as she cowered behind her grandfather. As a result of this incident the Aboriginal Council at Angurugu decided that in future no alcohol could be taken into the village. However, this decision is coming under strong pressure. Council's decision.

There have been previous knifings on the island but no deaths. The sisters at the hospital had always been able to patch up the wounds, however on this occasion the 17-year-old girl was dead on arrival at the hospital.

The incident created a difficult problem for those Aboriginals who have embraced Christianity. They were torn between their Christian principles and the deep-seated tribal customs which demand revenge in cases such as this. In fact, even as the murder was taking place, the chad girl's uncle was preaching in the church in the Anindilyaugwa language following a sermon by the chaplain, the Rev David Woodbridge. The uncle was also the guardian of the murdered girl.

According to the Aboriginal tradition, it was the council was taken fedge in the police station at Alyangula.

There is no question that the people involved were deeply motivated on this question. However, the wisdom of such a step could be questioned by some.

Cairns? Why not the Prime Minister and the Government as a whole?" For in the opinion of many the present Federal Government is more ideologically opposed to the Christian faith and Christian standards of Christians, but apart from Mr Stewart and Mr Beasley they are remarkedly subdued on the actions of their Government, as they relate to community standards.

Others might criticise the parish's actions in that the alternative party leaders are little better. That question of opinion and if a group of Christians judge that a Government or opposition leader has acted in a conspicuously reprehensible way they have every right to express their concern the way this parish did. Whether the policies of Dr Cairns fit that category is open to Probably the most serious objection is that such ar action would be grossly offensive to the many Church people who are supporters of the Labor Party. It could be disruptive of Christian fellowship within a congregation or even between congregations. This is the tight rope that any Christian spokesman has to walk.

The other objection that people could make is that to do what they did could be interpreted as vindictive even though they said it wasn't. The personal hurt caused to Dr Cairns might seriously compromise any response he may make to the Christian Gospel.

The New Testament encouraged Christians to pray for the good government of rulers in an age when self seeking and bad government was quite wide spread. We should do no less in our age.

SUNDAY FORMAT BRINGS 2CH GOOD RATINGS

"ACCORDING to Sur- Christian Faith and vey No 2 undertaken recently, Radio Station 2CH had a 14.5% share of the market, Monday to Sunday", Rev John Ed-mondstone, NSW Coun-cil of Churches Programme Director, said last week.

"This was only 2.3% away from the top station which had 16.8% of the market, and is a remarkable achievement seeing that 2CH only held 3% of the market in 1971," he

of the market in 1971," he added.

"The survey also indicated that a total of 727,000 listen to 2CH at some time Monday to Sunday, and the new pattern on Sunday meant that an extra 10,000 people tune in on that day. According to the survey at least 316,000 people listen to the station on Sunday." Mr Edmondstone said.

This significant change has come about since the "good-music" format was introduced on August 11 last year.

The Council of Churches decided to make the change, sweeping aside old programme styles that had not been varied for years. Protests were received from individuals and groups, but having reviewed the situation after 11 months. Council members are of the opinion that they have succeeded in achieving their objectives.

These were (i) To reach those not already committed to any church with a positive presentation of the total Christian message; (ii)

To speak to committed church members about the Christian Faith and its implications for the whole range of life; (iii) to offer counsel to both church members and the uncommitted; (iv) To give opportunity to the Council and member Churches to speak to the community on social and moral issues.

"A greater acceptance of the station by listeners has increased dramatically". Mr Edmondstone continued, "and there has been a spill-over to Sundays because of the more compatible format.

Aren't letters powerful things! Some that we receive cause our hearts to sink; others lift us up and bring a glow of warmth within that is a real blessing.

Although the apostle Paul had never visited the city of Colossae in Asia, he wrote a beautiful and powerful letter to God's people who lived there.

His letter began with a prayer for the Colossian Christians and as we read that prayer today we can hearn a great deal from it.

It is found in Colossians,

Word to the situations which arise in life.

Notice that we must pray for spiritual wisdom and understanding.
Having made these prayer requests. Paul immediately proceeded to tell the Colossian Christians why he prayed in that way and to outline the results that should follow. These should be:

To lead a life worthy of the Lord;
And to bear fruit in every good work.

To lead a life worthy of the cord;
And to bear fruit in every good work.

Prayer is the means whereby we discern what God's will is.

Notice that Paul prayed for spiritual wisdom. Notice worldly wisdom, which worldly wisdom, which comes from God alone through His Word and Spirit.

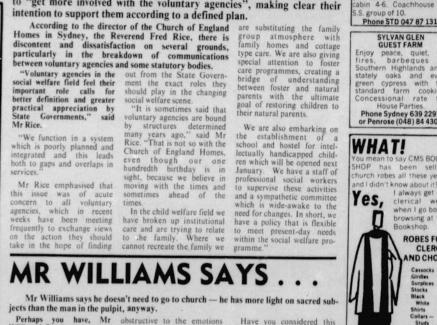

• And to bear fruit in every good work.

In the Christian life, theory must always be applied in practice. We pray for a knowledge of God's will so as to be able to lead a life worthy of the Lord.

The Christian's life is meant to be fruitful. We we, too, must pray for God's power to practise these things, and His power is available to us through the Spirit of the ascended Christ.

Justice and punishment: 'If we don't believe in God, then punishment is self-protection'

I want to speak about the Christian doctrine of punishment, as I have heard that some members of the judiciary are confusing retribution with revenge.

The teaching of the Christian faith is that punishment is based on the concept of justice.

That is, it is never selfcentred. Justice may be defined as giving everyone what is their due. Justice treats people as people.

Of course Seriouse points

due. Justice treats people as people.

We never ask, for example, about a plant, what is due to it, or even about an animal.

We deal with plants and wrong done to ourselves by extending mercy and forgive-in mind.

But men and women must never be treated in this way, and the concept of justice is the recognition that men and women have rights — rights which are due to them.

Justice is a concept very deep-rooted in our personality.

One of the earliest expressions of a child in a family is the cry "It is not fair", meaning, of course, "It is not fair tome".

But at least this shows that even a child has a sense of what is due to each person discrete.

The Bilde makes clear that "It is not fair to me".

But at least this shows that even a child has a sense of what is due to each person within the family group.

The Bible makes clear that God treats us on the basis of justice. Constantly throughout the Bible, the phrase occurs that "God renders to every man according to his works".

This is taught clearly in the occurs that "God renders to every man according to his works".

Justice is two-sided: to those who deserve a reward it is unjust to keep it back and to those who deserve punishment it is unjust to disregard it.

Justice, then, is distributive and retributive rendering to every man his due, whether by way of reward or punishment.

Christ taught that God will not overlook even the most insignificant action that deserves a reward.

He said that those who even gave a cup of water in reward (Mk 9:41), and at the same time He taught that God would not overlook even the most insignificant wrong-doing, but warned that we will have to give an account even for every idle word (Mt 2:36).

How much more, therefore, for every other wrong action or thought?

Justice, then, includes the double aspect of reward and retribution. Sometimes double aspect of reward and retribution. Sometimes double aspect of reward and retribution. Sometimes retribution, which is the basis of punishment, is confused with revenge; but the difference is very clear. Revenge is selfish, and the Bible makes clear that there must be no revenge in the administration of justice. You must render what is due, not what gives you satisfaction.

That is why the Bible lays down in the beginning of the Old Testament that in metals. This doctrine of retribution is in fact the only basis on which punishment can ever be inflicted, for we have absolutely no right to lay even a hostile hand on our fellow man by way of arresting him, or later imprisoning him unless he deserves it, and unless we are acting in the name of his Creator — that is to say, acting as a minister of God, as the Bible speaks of the magistrate.

We cannot treat men and women as though they were plants and animals and use them in a way that we think beneficial either to themselves or to society.

It is only because a person has deserved to be punished that we can take into consideration secondary benefits such as the opportunity of reforming the criminal, or the deterrent example of his punishment.

This is true in the home, in society, or between the nations — ultimately only God can punish.

It is the result of the relationship of Creator to creature.

The magistrate and the parent.

As private individuals we are not to punish, "Avenge not yourselves. Vengeance is mine, I will repay", says the Lord.

Unless we believe in God and make him the centre of our world-view — for if we believe in him, he must be the centre of understanding reality — unless we thus believe in God, all punishment must be self-centred.

Justice is other-personcentred — rendering to them

For people who do not make God central, it is impossible in the ultimate to distinguish between retribution and revenge.

The Humanist view of punishment, which is that it should be inflicted only as a deterrent or as a cure for criminal propensities, though it has the appearance of being merciful, is most cruel to the criminal, for it means that from the moment he breaks the law he is deprived of his rights as a human being.

Behind them a blue backdrop framed a huge rearropicetion screen on which images constantly interpreted the conference them.—"In Touch".

Miss Cothran, a Southern Baptist and former Acteens leader, told the girls that following Jesus Christ in faith and behaviour could bring satisfaction and achievements.

She gave her personal testimony, telling of a third grade "scare" profession of faith and a true conversion experience in camp at Falls Creek, Oklahoma.

We need all the encouragement we can get in trying to live consistently for Christ. It is heartening to see in many quarters a fresh appreciation by Christians of the need for such mutual support, and a renewed willingness to bear one another's burdens.

The first and chief source of encouragement is the Word of God. Christian fellowship is fellowship in the truth, that is, it grows out of a common acceptance of the authority of God's Word. The Holy Spirit ministers faith, hope and love through his truth and we must always maintain this priority. We need instruction to build up our understanding. We need teaching in sermons and we need it in informal settings too, so that in smaller groups questions can be asked and answered, and contributions made by group does not preserve us from difficulties, perplexities and fears. In these, we must support and help one another.

Meetings in small groups go a long way to assist the deepening of acquaintances between Christians. If our fellowship is to get beyond superficial levels we need regular meetings, sincere interest and mutual trust, and time for relationships to mature. A new note of realism and expectancy is struck where Godle records. and expectancy is struck where God's people are prepared to share their burdens and problems as well as their joys and successes, and are prepared to pray responsibly for one another.

One warning must be sounded. If confidences are shared, they must be kept. It is exceedingly difficult for many people to begin to share their problems. If they confide in us and we abuse that confidence it is hurtful and damaging. In these matters, as in others, we must be guided by the principle so clearly expressed to the latest the latest the suited by the principle so clearly expressed to the latest th But the Christian life is more than accuracy in doctrine, vital though this is. While our Christianity lifts

Guided by the principle so clearly enunciated by the Lord Jesus, and treat others as we would like them to treat us.

World Vision has defended itself against charges by a Japanese churchman to the effect that World Vision was acting for CIA in South East Asia. The charges were made in the April edition of the Far Eastern Economic Review. On June 23 the President of World Vision International, W. Stanley Mooneyham replied directly to Rev John Nakajima, the General Secretary of the National Christian Council of Japan who made the charges. Recently World Vision Australia released details of the exchange.

The attack on World Vision began, "under the guise of humanitarian Harris' files relief work at least two Christian voluntary agencies in South East Asia are receiving million dollar annual subsidies from the US government in exchange for highly valued political and military intelligence". The two exchange for highly valued political and military intelligence". The two agencies named were the Catholic Relief Services (CRS) and World Vision. Both were working in Cambodia before the Communist takeover.

Mr Nakajima also attacked the role of these agencies in the local churches, "horrible things are happening in the name of the Christian church ... Agencies like the CRS, serving as willing pawns of US foreign policy interests, are greatly undermining those local and truly Christian efforts.

One cannot help but wonder why you omitted his explanation since the statement appearing out of context certainly appears more damaging. I am sure you must remember that Mr.

"Dear Mr Nakajima,
A short time ago your report published in the Japan Christian Activity News after a brief visit to Cambodia earlier this year was called to my attention. You cannot imagine my shock upon reading your unfounded, distorted and untrue charges about World Vision.

I am totally amazed that a responsible Christian leader such as yourself would make such serious and potentially damaging charges against a Christian organisation without checking your information in the most thorough manner. That you did not check it or even the province of this world.

As for the 'necessary information' we provided AID, it all had to do with our refugee programmes. This is what is called 'accountability' and I am sure it is a generally accepted practice in Japan as it is among all people.
